DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 2002-354602 (provided by Applicant) in view of Nakashima et al. (USPN 6,848,713).

JP '602 discloses a motor vehicle having a high voltage power supply (2) that is interrupted by an control unit (consistent with the second control unit of Applicant's invention) that receives information from a collision/impact sensor and when a criterion is satisfied (which is that the speed detecting means does not exceed a prescribed value within a prescribed period). However, JP '602 does not specifically recite the relation of an airbag arrangement with a first control portion having a semiconductor impact sensor with the high voltage power supply interrupt.

Nakashima et al. discloses a common airbag arrangement that inherently reacts to an impact sensor. In Nakashima et al., the impact sensor 201 (see col. 12, lines 45-55 at least) can comprise a semiconductor sensor which is a common sensor type in impact arrangements for airbag systems.

Since it is common in the vehicle to include multiple systems on a vehicle, and the systems of JP '602 and Nakashima et al. include impact detection and a "safing sensor" (such as speed determination), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the arrangement of JP '602 by further including an airbag arrangement having a semiconductor impact sensor as taught by Nakashima et al. and having each system consider any/all impacts sensors (that may be different) and operating the systems accordingly.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 6 and 7 are allowed.

Claims 2 and 5 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Chiozzi et al. (USPUB 2007/0103001), Nomoto (USPN 6,185,488), Mayaumi et al. (USPN 5,995,891).
